Jay Sourwine, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, called and advised that Dave Barnett, of the North American Newspaper Alliance, had called requesting advice as to how he could [] He is interested in doing a feature article on him. I told Sourwine we would check and be back in touch.

3. []

[] called to advise that Mr. Lee and Mr. Greel, of State Department, and Mr. David McIlford, of Defense, delivered to Representative Reuss the classified letter from State which constituted an interim answer to Reuss' inquiry regarding the DER SPIEGEL matter. (See Journal of 6 December 1962) Ikenstead said the report he received indicated that Reuss may not feel as strongly as originally indicated and further meetings with him may not be necessary. Ikenstead also advised that he had information to the effect that Mr. McGone and Secretary Rusk have had discussions on this subject. At the Director's request, EE is updating its memorandum on the subject.

After talking with [] OCL, regarding the studies which are being prepared by the Agency for the National Security Staffing and Operations Subcommittee, I advised Dorothy Feedick, of the Subcommittee staff, that the work we were doing for them had been slowed down somewhat by the Cuban crisis, that our target date was now 1 March for getting the material to the Subcommittee. She said the timing was not the most important factor, adding that she would rather have good material even if it took a little longer to prepare. We also discussed the desirability of getting together around the middle of next week to discuss progress to date. We are to call and arrange the timing on this.
